THE GARFIELD BILL.

Mr. Garfield's bill for the examination of Treasury accounts provides that the Secretary of the Treasury shall appoint a Commissioner of Treasury Accounts, who shall be a person of skill and experience in the examination of accounts, and who shall not be appointed for more than four years, and who may be removed by the President for inefficiency, neglect of duty, or malfeasance in office. He shall appoint a Deputy Commissioner, who shall perform the duties of Commissioner in his absence, and who may be removed by the Secretary of the Treasury. The Commissioner shall appoint, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, such number of clerks as may be necessary, and may remove them for inefficiency, neglect of duty, or malfeasance in office. The Commissioner shall examine all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the Treasury Department, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the collection of internal revenue, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the collection of customs, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the collection of direct taxes, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the collection of miscellaneous revenue, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the collection of the proceeds of the sales of public lands, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the collection of moneys arising from any source whatsoever, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of interest on the public debt, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of pensions, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of bounties, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of the army, navy, and miscellaneous expenditures, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of the civil list, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of the legislative expenses, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of the judicial expenses, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of the diplomatic expenses, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of the Indian expenses, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of the expenses of the District of Columbia, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of the expenses of the Territories, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of the expenses of the Mint, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of the expenses of the Post-Office Department, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of the expenses of the Navy Department, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of the expenses of the War Department, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of the expenses of the Interior Department, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of the expenses of the State Department, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of the expenses of the Treasury Department, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of the expenses of the War Department, and all accounts of moneys received and disbursed by officers of the United States in the payment of the expenses of the Navy
